WORDS OF WELCOME FROM U.S. SOCCER

The World Series of Soccer has become a fixture on the national soccer scene as the U.S. national team continues its preparation for the 1994 World Cup. We're pleased that you are a part of the festivities here at today's top-level international match.

The Series, which continues all the way up to World Cup 1994, features the U.S. national team against top teams from around the world. Attendance at World Series matches soared in 1991, averaging more than 35,000 fans for much of the schedule.

Through this Series and future top-level international matches, we are working to bring the best soccer to fans all across America, with the clear goal of making soccer a mainstream American spectator sport. Of course, your attendance at today's game is much appreciated, and we hope that you enjoy watching the best soccer players America has to offer.

These young men represent more than 15.5 million individuals in the United States who play competitive or recreational soccer each year. Many of our national team players are graduates of growing youth, scholastic and adult programs from all parts of the United States.

It has been extremely gratifying for us to experience the warm receptions given our team as its travels around the USA and to foreign countries. The large and enthusiastic crowds at U.S. matches, we hope, are an indication that our game is indeed coming of age and that American soccer fans do appreciate the international game.

We hope to see you and your family at future matches involving the national teams of U.S. Soccer.

Very Truly Yours,
Alan Rothenberg,
President,
U.S. Soccer Federation

The past year has been extremely exciting for all of us at U.S. Soccer. It was a year in which we launched the World Series of Soccer, and the response from fans around the country has been nothing short of outstanding.

Today's game is part of our preparation for the 1994 World Cup and we're glad that you're part of it. Soccer is indeed the sport of the masses and, with millions playing the game all across America, we're pleased to bring the best possible competition to your city.

Like the national team which grows in stature with each match played in the United States and abroad, the governing body of soccer in the United States—U.S. Soccer—has also made huge forward strides.

Many national sponsors have joined the U.S. Soccer family, and the movement of our national offices to Chicago underscores our plans of growth and success in the years to come.

We have been pleased with the coming together of the soccer family in the last 12 months. We have worked hard to communicate with the various constituencies who help make the game prosper in the USA, and we are pleased that we're all working toward one common goal—success for the 1994 World Cup and the endowment of our game for future generations to come.

We hope that you and your family will be able to attend many U.S. national team matches leading up to the World Cup. And with our national offices relocating to the beautiful U.S. Soccer House in downtown Chicago, we hope that when you're in the area that you'll come by to visit us.

Have fun and enjoy the game today!

Yours Sincerely,
Hank Steinbrecher,
Executive Director/Secretary General,
U.S. Soccer Federation

Welcome to another exciting match in the World Series of Soccer, and congratulations on being one of the hundreds of thousands of fans all across America who are showing the world that the United States knows soccer.

The World Series of Soccer originally was developed to give the millions of American soccer players and fans the opportunity to see, in person, the excitement of world-class soccer, as well as to help raise the level of play of our U.S. national team as it continues on the road to World Cup '94. The Series so far, though, has done much more than that. It has proved to skeptics and the rest of the world that soccer does, indeed, have a large following in the United States.

Fans of all ages have been flocking to stadiums across the country to see the national team take on the best teams on the international soccer scene. Most notable is the crowd of 51,273 that jammed Foxboro Stadium near Boston last June 1 to see the United States play Ireland. An unprecedented 12,000 walk-up tickets were purchased at that game, with fans still entering the stadium at halftime.

We at Soccer USA Partners are proud to bring these matches to you live and on SportsChannel America, but we could not do it alone. Thanks are due to all the state soccer associations for their immense efforts in selling tickets, to all our local and national sponsors and, most important, to you, the fan.

Enjoy the match, and we look forward to seeing you, and the rest of the world, at the games to come.

Sincerely,
Michael Forte,
Chief Executive Officer,
Soccer USA Partners

WORLD CUP '94 PUTS ORLANDO IN THE SPOTLIGHT

When thousands of Central Floridians heard the announcement that Orlando had been selected as a site for the 1994 World Cup, they broke into a cheer that could be heard in buildings several blocks away. This enthusiastic response was the capstone of a grassroots effort that had involved hundreds of people for more than three years.

Orlando is going to be one of only nine cities to host the world's most popular sporting event in the summer of 1994. It is going to mean worldwide publicity for Central Florida, including the opportunity to meet and interact with people from countries whose national teams already are playing for the right to be one of the 22 sides that will join Germany (the reigning champion) and the United States (as host) in the final World Cup field of 24.

Fifty-two matches will be played between June 17 and July 17, 1994 to determine which of these two-dozen nations will be crowned world champion.

At least four and possibly more World Cup matches will be played at the Citrus Bowl in the summer of 1994 and will attract soccer fans from around the world. PHOTO: SMITH AERIAL PHOTOGRAPHY, INC.

While this is an unparalleled opportunity for all of Central Florida, it is really a chance for each and every citizen, company and group in the area to be part of a once-in-a-lifetime event that can touch all elements of the community: education, art, business, commerce, youth, athletics, media, culture and trade.

World Cup Orlando is an all-volunteer organization that has built a broad constituency in our community. We encourage you to contact us and become part of the biggest sports event in the world. Whether you have an idea for us to consider, some time to spend with us, or a product or service you wish to contribute, we welcome your participation.

You can call us (407) 246-0012 or write to us at 800 North Magnolia Ave., Orlando, Fla. 32803.

You should also know that our mission is to build a lasting legacy for soccer in our community. So come on, it's time to get on the ball and be a part of the best venue in the best World Cup ever held!

Sincerely,
Joanie Schirm and Paul Verkull,
Co-Chairs, World Cup Orlando 1994

THE YEAR SO FAR

GAME 1

Date:
Jan. 25
Site:
Miami, Fla.
Opponent:
C.I.S.
Result:
Lost, 1-0
U.S. Goals:
None
Attendance:
30,866
Summary:
This year's campaign began at Joe Robbie Stadium in Miami, where a record crowd of 30,866, turned out to see the first match ever played by the Commonwealth of Independent States (C.I.S.), formerly the Soviet Union. Coach Anatoly Bishovets brought a relatively young but potentially gifted team with him from Moscow, and its ability was evident on the field.

The C.I.S. dominated much of the play in Florida but could not penetrate the tough U.S. defense. Eventually, only a bit of bad luck denied the United States a tie when C.I.S. defender Akhrik Tsveiba's powerful shot was accidentally deflected into his own net by U.S. defender John Doyle. C.I.S. goalkeeper Dmitri Kharin saved a penalty kick by Marcelo Balboa a short while later to preserve the 1-0 victory.

Date:
Feb. 2
Site:
Pontiac, Mich.
Opponent:
C.I.S.
Result:
Won, 2-1
U.S. Goals:
Eric Wynalda, Marcelo Balboa
Attendance:
35,248
Summary:
Another large crowd saw the Americans avenge the loss in Miami by winning on the artificial surface of the Pontiac Silverdome. Marcelo Balboa, too, made amends by hammering home the winning penalty kick. Eric Wynalda and his San Francisco Bay Blackhawk teammate Dominic Kinnear combined to give the United States the lead in the third minute. A free kick by Kinnear was floated across the face of the goal and Wynalda timed his jump perfectly to power the ball into the back of the net with a textbook header.

Oleg Sergeyev got the C.I.S. back on level terms in the 27th minute when he beat U.S. goalkeeper and captain Tony Meola, but Balboa, now with the Colorado Foxes, ensured the U.S. left the Silverdome with a win when he made no mistake with his penalty kick after the referee ruled that U.S. striker Bruce Murray had been fouled.

Date:
Feb. 12
Site:
San Jose, Costa Rica
Opponent:
Costa Rica
Result:
Tied, 0-0
U.S. Goals:
None
Attendance:
22,000
Summary:
An 11-day trip to Central America saw U.S. coach Bora Milutinovic introduce several newcomers to the national team and leave the majority of his usual starters at home. A crowd of 22,000 at the National Stadium in San Jose watched U.S. goalkeeper Mark Dodd turn in a superb performance in the nets as the teams battled to a scoreless tie. Afterward, Milutinovic expressed satisfaction with the newcomers' performance.

"I am very happy for these players," he said. "I respect the way these young players played. They showed great discipline for not having played together before. I need to see more (new) players. This is most important. I need to see how the new players play tactically, the team's attitude, everything. I want to see how they train, their discipline, the spirit of the group, their life. All of this I want to know a little bit better."

Date:
Feb. 19
Site:
San Salvador, El Salvador
Opponent:
El Salvador
Result:
Lost, 2-0
U.S. Goals:
None
Attendance:
45,000
Summary:
A huge crowd that included Alfredo Cristiani, El Salvador's president, turned Cuscatlan Stadium in San Salvador into a cauldron of noise on a hot, humid night and unnerved the young and inexperienced U.S. squad. "It's a little scary playing in front of such a rowdy crowd," admitted midfielder Mike Sorber. "In America, I've never even been to watch a game with that many people."

Despite the result, Milutinovic again was pleased with his team's performance, including that of Sorber and especially that of Zak Ibsen. "It is normal for these players to be a little scared," he said. "They have never played in this kind of atmosphere. That was a major reason for coming here. Results right now are not as important as experience. It is good they were scared, next time nothing. They will be ready."

GAME 5

Date:
Feb. 26
Site:
Fortaleza, Brazil
Opponent:
Brazil
Result:
Lost, 3-0
U.S. Goals:
None
Attendance:
40,000
Summary:
For this trip to the northern port city of Fortaleza, Milutinovic took his strongest team, even bringing in Tab Ramos and Peter Vermes from their Spanish club, Figueres, and Ernie Stewart from his Dutch team, Willem II Tilburg. The U.S. team's effort against a more skilled and experienced side won the applause of many of the Brazilian fans. Midfielders Ramos and Hugo Perez, in particular, did well.

In the end, though, it was Brazil that triumphed on a goal by Antonio Carlos in the 26th minute and two by Rai in the 73rd and 79th minutes. "Again, it is a case of results not being the important thing, but really how we played," Milutinovic said. "They scored all three goals on set plays. The public recognized our fight tonight and they got behind us. If we score early in the second half, it is a different game. Overall, I am very happy with my squad because how often can you beat Brazil in Brazil?"

Defender Marcelo Balboa moves in to block a shot by Spain's Aitor Berguiristain during the U.S. team's match in Valladolid last March 11.

GAME 6

Date:
March 11
Site:
Valladolid, Spain
Opponent:
Spain
Result:
Lost. 2-0
U.S. Goals:
None
Attendance:
35,000
Summary:
On a bitterly cold night in what Spanish fans call "pneumonia stadium," the U.S. offense froze in its tracks and the team spent the evening merely holding Spain in check. The fact that the Spaniards won by only a 2-0 margin on goals by Aitor Beguiristain off a rebound in the 39th minute and Fernando Hierro off a free kick in the 75th shows that the Americans were at least to some extent successful. A missed opportunity early on by Peter Vermes off a superb cross from Tab Ramos was as close as the U.S. team came to scoring.

Paul Caligiuri, brought in from his German club team SC Freiburg, especially for the match, gave this overview: "We did give them two gifts as goals. It's unfortunate. But I think considering we're testing some other players and seeing some new faces, we did okay." Added Ramos, easily the most polished of the U.S. players: "Basically we were playing a superior team that didn't give us too many options."

GAME 7

Date: March 18
Site: Casablanca, Morocco
Opponent: Morocco
Result: Lost, 3-1
U.S. Goals: Hugo Perez
Attendance: 20,000
Summary: The end of a long trip saw the U.S. upended by Morocco on a night when the team played much better than it had in Spain and yet still came out on the short end of a 3-1 result. Coach Bora Milutinovic was obliged to field yet another experimental lineup after John Harkes failed to arrive from England as expected and after Paul Caligiuri, Tab Ramos and Peter Vermes had returned to their club teams. Goals by Morocco in the 4th, 25th and 81st minutes at giant Mohammed V Stadium were sandwiched around an excellent free kick goal by Hugo Perez in the 58th minute.

The United States dominated much of the second half, but was unable to pull level. "If we look at the chances we created, it was encouraging," said midfielder Brian Quinn. "Because if you're not creating chances then you have a bigger problem as a team. It's a cruel way to lose, but hopefully over a long time we'll be able to recognize that when you have an opportunity, don't give it away."

GAME 9

Date: April 29
Site: Dublin, Ireland
Opponent: Ireland
Result: Lost, 4-1
U.S. Goals: Eric Wynalda
Attendance: 27,000
Summary: While the final score appeared lopsided, it was probably a bit flattering to the Irish, who were still being held, 0-0, at halftime. The U.S. players' quick passing and strong running kept Ireland unsettled until after the break. Defender Andy Townsend, who had a first-half shot well saved by Tony Meola, put the Irish ahead two minutes into the second half with a swerving, 25-yard shot. Five minutes later, Townsend was taken down on the edge of the area by Hugo Perez and Denis Irwin blasted home the free kick for his first international goal.

Niall Quinn made the score 3-0 in the 68th minute before being replaced by substitute Tony Cascarino, who responded with a fine individual goal from the edge of the area with three minutes remaining. Eric Wynalda, who scored for the United States in its 1-1 tie with Ireland in Boston last June, gave the U.S. a consolation goal in the final minute.

GAME 8

Date: April 4
Site: Palo Alto, Calif.
Opponent: People's Republic of China
Result: Won, 5-0
U.S. Goals: Dominic Kinnear; Hugo Perez (2); Eric Wynalda (2)
Attendance: 31,815
Summary: Hugo Perez and Eric Wynalda led the U.S. onslaught with two goals apiece and Dominic Kinnear added the fifth as the United States scored one of its most one-sided victories ever. The five goals were the most scored by the national team since a 5-1 victory over Jamaica in a World Cup qualifying match in 1988, and represented the most lopsided win since the United States beat Canada, 6-1, in Brooklyn, N.Y. on Nov. 6, 1926.

"When you're able to execute like that, you're going to bury teams and that's basically what happened today," Wynalda said. "The last couple of games, we haven't been as fortunate in front of the net. This week, we concentrated a lot harder on our finishing. So coming into today, we felt really confident that if and when we got our chances, we'd be able to finish them."

GAME 10

Date: May 17
Site: Denver, Colo.
Opponent: Scotland
Result: Lost, 1-0
U.S. Goals: None
Attendance: 24,157
Summary: Scotland struck early, scoring when a give-and-go between Pat Nevin and Ally McCoist, set up Nevin for a shot that found the upper left corner of the net, just out of the reach of U.S. goalkeeper Kasey Keller. Bora Milutinovic gave Keller the start ahead of Tony Meola and the U.S. 1990 World Cup team 1992 Olympic team backup 'keeper responded with a solid performance. The U.S. squad took the game to the Scots after giving up the goal, but was unable to break down the Scottish defense. Those few chances that were created were squandered by poor finishing.

GAME 11

Date: May 30
Site: Washington, D.C.
Opponent: Ireland
Result: Won, 3-1
U.S. Goals: Marcelo Balboa, Tab Ramos, John Harkes
Attendance: 35,696
Summary: The United States handed Jack Charlton his heaviest defeat as Ireland's manager as America's European-based players returned to play a key role in the victory, which also saw the U.S. debut of forward Roy Wegerle and defender Tom Dooley. Ireland took the lead early in the second half and then was stunned by goals from Marcelo Balboa off a Hugo Perez free kick flicked on by John Doyle, Tab Ramos off a Fernando Clavijo cross and John Harkes off assists from Wegerle and Dooley. The U.S. also hit the post once and had another shot cleared off the line.

15 QUICK FACTS

YOU SHOULD KNOW ABOUT WORLD CUP '94

1

This glass tower is the Los Angeles headquarters building from which World Cup '94 will be controlled. Any questions about the event can be answered by sending queries in writing, not by telephone.

The executive offices are in Suite 400, 2029 Century Park East, Los Angeles, Calif. 90067.

The New York offices are in Suite 220, 1270 Avenue of the Americas, New York, N.Y. 10020.

2

If any country other than Brazil, Germany, Argentina, Italy, Uruguay or England wins the trophy in 1994, it will be a major upset. Only six nations have ever won the World Cup: Brazil, Italy and West Germany are three-time winners; Argentina and Uruguay have won twice, and England has been victorious on one occasion. The full list, by year and location:

1930—Uruguay in Uruguay
1934—Italy in Italy
1938—Italy in France
1950—Uruguay in Brazil
1954—West Germany in Switzerland
1958—Brazil in Sweden
1962—Brazil in Chile
1966—England in England
1970—Brazil in Mexico
1974—West Germany in West Germany
1978—Argentina in Argentina
1982—Italy in Spain
1986—Argentina in Mexico
1990—West Germany in Italy

3

Two teams already are qualified for the 1994 final field of 24 participants: The United States, as host nation, earns an automatic berth, and Germany, as defending champion, also need not qualify. Qualification matches to decide the remaining 22 entrants began in March of 1992.

4

Brazil is the only country to have played in every World Cup.

5

FIFA, world soccer's ruling body, awarded the 1994 World Cup to the United States on July 4, 1988.

6

If the United States used exactly the [illegible] players in 1994 that it did [illegible], their average age would be 28 years and [illegible] months, or just seven months older than the average age of the winning West German team in Italy.

7

8

The United States Congress has approved the minting of a special set of coins in honor of the 1994 tournament. Approval has been given for the issuing of 750,000 $5 gold coins, five million silver dollars and five million clad half-dollars.

9

The 36th match played during World Cup '94 will be the 500th game in the history of the finals. The championship match in 1990 between West Germany and Argentina was the 464th played to this point.

10

11

during the 14 tournaments played so far. That averages 1,282,198 per tournament.

The opening match of the 1994 World Cup will be played on June 17 of that year, with the championship final scheduled one month later on July 17.

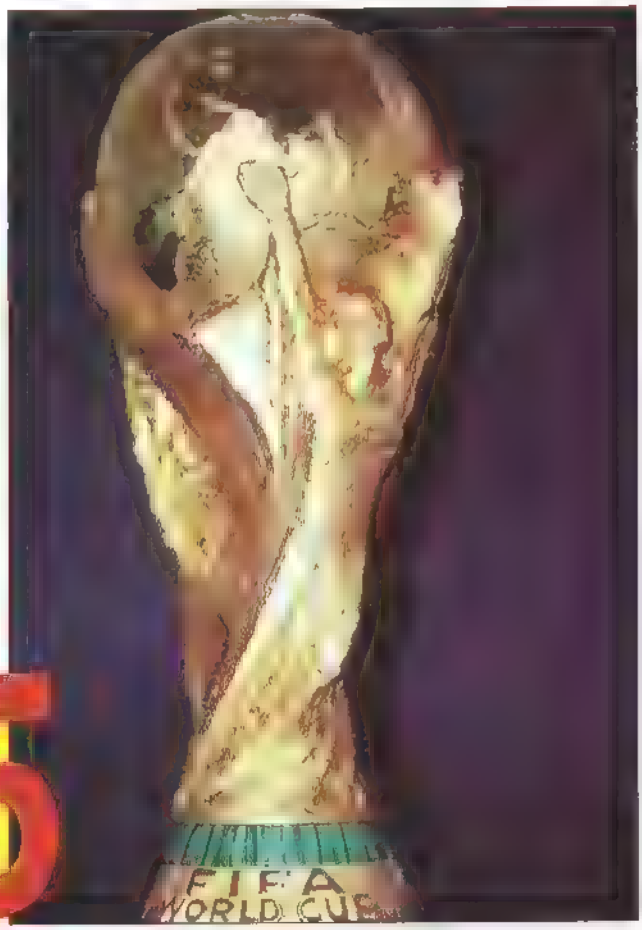
13

12

The official logo of the 1994 World Cup will have been seen worldwide more than one trillion times by the end of the 1994

14

If history repeats itself again, one unfortunate team will lose a match by a 9-0 score in 1994. That is the biggest-ever margin of defeat in the World Cup finals. In 1954, Hungary beat South Korea, 9-0, and in 1974, Yugoslavia beat Zaire, 9-0. The 20-year cycle will be up again in 1994.



15

The World Cup trophy, designed by Italian sculptor Silvio Gazzaniga, is made of solid 18-carat gold with two rings of malachite near the base. It stands 36 centimeters high and weighs 4.970 grams.

AUSTRALIA

It would be tempting to say that Australian soccer has made great strides in the past 20 years, but the truth is that the sport has struggled to find its niche "Down Under" just as it has in the United States.

Australia has had occasional success in the international arena, most recently in last summer's Under-20 World Championship in Portugal, where it finished fourth, and in qualifying for this summer's Olympic Games, which it did by ousting The Netherlands in a playoff for the 16th and final berth in Barcelona.

"Socceroos" are tonight's opponent for the United States.

Prior to that, however, Australian fans have to look back as far as 1974 for their country's last great success. That came in qualifying for the World Cup in West Germany, where the "Socceroos," as the team is nicknamed, failed to survive the first round

Australia is a dominant force in the Oceania Confederation, but there is talk that if the Confederation is disbanded by FIFA, Australia would like to join the Asian Football Confederation, since it is confident it could compete successfully against the likes of China, Japan and South Korea

Australia's National Soccer League has struggled to make an impact on the Australian sports scene, its ethnic-oriented club soccer being overshadowed by such sports as rugby, cricket, Australian Rules football and others. As a result, most of the country's top players find themselves playing abroad, an increasing number of them finding success in Europe.

This evening's match marks the first meeting between the United States and Australia on the soccer field.

Not just another game.

From the wide open fields of Melbourne, to the narrow streets of Buenos Aires, soccer is the one game played in just about every country on earth.

Sprint, the global telecommunications resource in voice, data and video, is proud to now play a part in bringing soccer to this country, by sponsoring the World Series of Soccer.

After all, any sport that has conquered the entire world is a little bit out of the ordinary. And we can't help but relate to that.
